EXPERIENCE

Associate Director
2013–Present

Lewis Center for Regional Policy Studies & UCLA Institute of Transportation Studies at the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs

I work on management, strategy, and external relations for an endowed research center that focuses on solutions for California's urban and regional challenges, with an emphasis on transportation, economic development and housing, and the environment.

Lecturer

2013–Present

UCLA Department of Urban Planning & Institute of Environment and Sustainability

- As a Lecturer in Environmental Science, I worked with a team of seniors to create a carbon neutral community plan and electricity delivery plan for Hermosa Beach, and a long-range greenhouse gas reduction plan for Santa Monica.

2014–2015

- As a Lecturer in Urban Planning, I taught an environmental assessment course that compared applications of the California Environmental Quality Act with the Strategic Environmental Assessment approach used in Europe. The course also introduced assessment methods used for climate change impacts analysis and community-level greenhouse gas management.

Manager

2013–Present

UCLA Local Climate Change Initiative

Research related to measuring and attributing greenhouse gas emissions from transportation to local and regional governments, local government climate action planning, integrating regional land use-transportation-emissions models for more accurate greenhouse gas measurement, and the climate-transportation-land use connection.
